

226 W. Lake Street - Contributing

Located at 226 W. Lake Street is a two- and one-half-story asymmetrical Queen Anne dwelling built ca. 1880. The house has a hipped roof of asphalt shingles, an exterior brick chimney, an interior brick chimney, a continuous brick foundation and an exterior of weatherboard siding with bands of diamond scalloping and wood shingles. At the southeast corner of the main façade is a two-story circular tower with a conical roof and topped with a milled wood finial. On the main (S) elevation is a partial-width, hipped roof porch with a circular corner supported by wood Tuscan columns, a solid wood railing with decorative shingles and milled sawtooth detailing at the cornice. The main entrance has a wood paneled door with a rectangular transom that has been enclosed with wood and is set within a wood frame with corner blocks and simple wood cornice. Windows in the dwelling are original, one-over-one double hung wood sash and three-over-one-vertical-light double hung wood sash with wooden frames with fluted pilasters, corner blocks and sawtooth dentils beneath the cornice. At the roofline of the main façade is a large gable roof dormer with a single-light fixed attic window. At the apex of the hipped roof is a small wood cutout widow's walk. On the east elevation on the first floor is a bay window with a bracketed cornice. On the rear of the dwelling is an original gable roof wing. On the east elevation of this wing is a one-story, enclosed porch constructed ca. 1990. The porch roof serves as an upper story patio/deck and has a wooden railing. At the roofline of the dwelling's east elevation is a gable roof dormer with three fixed single-light attic windows.

To the northwest of the dwelling is a single-bay, newly built/reconstructed, frame, garage with an exterior of vinyl siding, a gable roof of asphalt shingles and an original, eight-light and twelve-wood-panel overhead track door.
